FIRST LADY OF LAND DELIGHTED WITH HER TRIP

Mrs. Harding Says People of Alaska Are One Hundred Per Cent Americans.

Charming and sincere, the First Lady of the Land captivated the hearts of Juneau and when she leaves Alaska, taking with her gifts from the people of the Territory she is also taking the highest admiration and affection of those whom she greeted here.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding is beautiful to meet. Her grace and manner of greeting people lose all bonds of constraint and formality and her fascinating personality reflected especially in her low and forceful tone as she speaks and her smile, which is contagious to her listeners, holds one by its charm.

"I like your people of Alaska and I am glad to hold your hand," said Mrs. Harding, as with a hearty handclasp of greeting she smiled a ready assent to talk of her impressions on the trip of the Presidential party to Alaska. Charming in a frock of the new figured silk in a design of blue and white, and navy blue silk hat she stood in the conservatory at the Governors' House yesterday afternoon and talked of Alaska and its people as she finds them.

"I like your people of Alaska," she reiterated, "because as I look into their faces and see the sparkle in their eyes I know they are one hundred per cent Americans, and that is the most important of all things."

And unconsciously, as she said the word "Americans," the First Lady of the Land drew herself to straight and rigid posture, her own eyes a sparkle and her arms slightly extended, a living symbol of American patriotism.

That is another of Mrs. Harding's charms, her own enthusiasm as she talks, be the subject of her conversation what it may.

With a quick smile she turned to Alaska itself.

"Different than I expected," she said. "I cannot tell you the surprise and delight in finding a country of such beauty. The mild climate, the flowers and the sunshine, it is practically similar to the climate of Washington. Really I am glad for the rain today, while I am sorry for the sake of the people of Juneau, and I am glad because before coming to Alaska we were told of the continuous rain in this country and had not experienced what a cloudy day on the entire trip had we arrived here. You see we were anxious to know the rains of Alaska."

"Kiki" Quits Broadway and Stage for Hollywood and the Screen

Leonore Ulric, heroine of "Kiki," "Tiger Rose" and other notable plays staged by David Belasco, has deserted New York and the legitimate drama for Hollywood and the Screen. Above, Miss Ulric is seen aboard the train in New York where representatives of David Belasco and the firm of Warner Bros. are giving the star a rousing send-off as she departs for Los Angeles where she will immediately begin work on the photoplay version of "Tiger Rose," first of three Warner Bros. "Classics of the Screen" to be made under the personal supervision of Mr. Belasco.

While Mrs. Harding was experiencing probably the most strenuous day of her trip so far, in Juneau, after her recent serious illness, she showed no sign of fatigue but seemed exhilarated by her experience in meeting the people and viewing the scenery of the North.
